Who should attend

This course was developed under the direction of the California Emergency Medical Services Authority to improve awareness, notification, coordination, response and recovery from a chemical, biological, radiological, nuclear, or explosive event. Senate Bill 1350, passed in 2002, directed California EMS providers to undergo “terrorism awareness” training that exceeds that of the federal Office of Domestic Preparedness WMD Response Training Guidelines. This enhanced medical curriculum focuses on the specific signs and symptoms of various CBRNE agents. This course refers to this “enhanced medical” content as “Med-Plus.”

Attendance at this course is free.
